

loving – loved – be a team

LOVING FAMILY

A joyful and fun family time is what all families are looking for. It's about enjoying each other.

In these times, we all have to stay at home. The world of work and private life are no longer separate. People work from home and the kids are home-schooled at the same time. The majority of families are not used to that. It can be quite stressful.

By sharing what's going on in your world with people who experience the same, you reduce stress. Encouraging each other to remain appreciative and caring or considerate helps to master the daily challenges. Moreover it is easier to experience fun and joy with your family members.

The loving-family-program stimulates your energy to create a loving family atmosphere all the time, not only during these unusual days.

MY CUSTOMERS SAY

„Katja is appreciative, encouraging, never instructive. She gives me the perspective to see what works. I am reminded what is good for me and what I actually want. That raises my energy.“

Ruth, pediatrician, mother of a daughter

„You make recommendations which are easy to implement and have a great impact.“

Beate K., Berlin, mother of 4

“For the past 18 years I have been sharing appreciative communication tools successfully in the arena of business. Now, I want to share this effective approach to team building with families. I realized that my family and I managed several moves to foreign countries, including homeschooling and working from home remotely, because we most of all paid attention to creating team spirit.”
